

Are you ready to take your business global?

From Local to Global

Global Kinetics helps its clients grow from a local or national focused business to an international player, with a predictable revenue stream and global presence.

Global Kinetics's team, based in Amsterdam, London, and the United States, is dedicated to increasing client revenues through increased sales all across Europe.

Through strategic planning and swift execution, Global Kinetics enables your company to hit the ground running in Europe and start selling immediately.

Global Kinetics is an expert in helping American based companies find their place within the European market. Working with existing European partners, the best European distributors and resellers, we get your product into the market effectively, allowing you to focus on what you do best—creating innovative solutions.

Global Kinetics works as an extension of your management team, with the common goal of successfully expanding your presence into the global market. We assist with the highest achievement a company can hope for—we successfully help our clients build a strong sales presence in Europe. With Global Kinetics, our clients experience tremendous growth in sales, while beating their rivals in the highly competitive European marketplace. Working during tough economic times, it's not uncommon for companies to remain focused on selling locally: it's familiar territory, you probably have an established sales record here, and the thought of expanding into Europe may seem daunting and cost-prohibitive. The reality is that Europe provides a stable growth opportunity for companies.
